Construction, Real Estate, CIRA

At WCS, we know that success in the construction and real estate industry is complex. With all the uncertainties, intricacies, and volatility, choosing the right accounting firm for your business is imperative.

We work with all sizes and types of construction and real estate industry companies, including; general contractors, home builders, real estate developers, subcontractors, specialty trades and common interest realty associations.

We offer a wide range of industry-specific accounting, business consulting, and tax services to help our clients with their unique challenges and opportunities.

Our diverse group of accounting professionals allows us to provide services such as performing due diligence, evaluation and establishment of internal control systems, client advisory services, industry benchmarking, to name a few.

Our wide range of services gives our construction and real estate clients a wealth of resources comparable to those of larger firms, while maintaining the close, personal attention that is the cornerstone of our firm.

WCS is an active member of the National Association of Construction Auditors (NACA), a professional association dedicated to enhancing the control environment related to construction projects and providing the specific professional certification of Certified Construction Auditor. We are also a member of the Maryland Associated General Contractors of America, whose core mission is to be the primary resource in the region for commercial construction contractors to develop and advance their companies.
